

BLACK CURRANTS: A PROCESS CROP

A.W. SMITH

HORTICULTURE DIVISION

NEW ZEALAND DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

SUMMARY

The cultural requirements of the black currant crop are given and considered in relation to the environmental conditions occurring in Canterbury. An attempt is made to assess the likelihood of the development of an export industry based on large scale intensive low-cost production of black currants.